

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A flashing light system uses a controller or controlling integrated circuit to flash one or more series of lamps, such as LEDs. The lamps or LEDs are arranged to form a predetermined pattern, such as a letter or other alphanumeric character. Random patterns may also be generated and used. The LEDs may also be arranged to highlight or display an illustration, a logo or other character.